

FOCH SEES GREAT FUTURE FOR STATE

COMPLETE REPORT ON HOMEBUILDERS

DEFICIT GROWS TO $91,000 IN STATE INDUSTRY

Figures Reveal Situation of Homebuilders Association as of October 31

POSSIBLE	LOSS	$250,000
Increase Over Estimated Cost of Houses is 61 Per Cent Complete List Shows

The Homebuilders Association had on October 31 when a balance sheet was made a deficit of $91,145.73.

The final cost on 53 houses constructed by the state homebuilding body is 61 per cent higher than the estimated cost.

The possible loss if settlement were made on the basis of the estimated cost of the houses would exceed $250,000.

This statement of affairs is shown from the books of the association by J. B. Adams, manager of the association, in the last few months. Mr. Adams succeeded Manager Blakemore and has been engaged in cleaning up accounts on the homes most of the time.

The total increase in the cost of completed structures over the estimate is $172,938.72. It is expected that persons for whom houses were built will seek to avoid paying this excess, which would increase the deficit.

In arriving at the cost of houses 2 per cent of the cost was added for administrative expense. This left an administrative expense excess of $49,150.00 which is charged against the state association, and under the home building law is paid by taxpayers. The administrative expense charged against taxpayers is $927.35 for each house built.

Classification of Deficit
The classification of the deficit includes the following losses: Administrative expense, $49,150.01; drop on material prices, $28,372.72; interest on stock charged off, $5,162.97; damage to property account, $500.00. Included in the administrative expense are payments to the Equitable Audit company which was employed to make an analysis of cancelled checks, etc. of $22,000. Some homebuilders' lumber has been sold since building was suspended. The loss on this is about 40 per cent.

Below is given the estimated cost of each house and the total cost complete as of October 23, 1921.

The percentage of increase of completed work over estimated cost—61 per cent—is greater than had previously been reported, the highest figure having been estimated from available information being 40 per cent. The deficit is larger than was found last winter by the investigating committee.

Complete figures on the home of William Lemke, in Fargo, which has been much discussed. The show the estimated cost at $12,500, extra, $2,000 total cost $12,379.81 which does not include some materials purchased independently of the association by the builder.

The situation is one which is expected to be taken up by the new administration, and the solution may await a court ruling as to whether the builders of houses or the state shall stand the loss as represented by the increase in the completed costs over the estimated costs.

No Contracts Signed
Thus far no contracts have been signed on any of the houses built by the association. Five contracts have been signed on houses purchased, which are not included in the figures given below.

An opinion of Attorney-General Lemke of Nov. 22 states that as long as both legal and equitable title remains in the state the house is not taxable and in no event can taxes be levied against property of the state except as assessments as to special improvements. Taxes are not to be charged against the property unless the builder has an absolute conveyance of the property. Under this rule the state pays the taxes on the houses and they cannot be sold.

Homebuilders' houses have been advertised for sale on account of delinquent taxes in Fargo and Mr. Adams went to Fargo yesterday to deal with that situation and others.

R. R. McClintock, editor of the Fargo Courier-News, paid about $800 for the association and then refused to take his house, which the association went ahead and completed.

Comparison with Estimates
Following is the estimated cost of the houses as given the purchaser by James T. Baker, superintendent of construction for the homebuilders' association.

Bismarck Project No. 1	Cost	Estimated
1. Mosbrucker	$4,020	$6,110.00
2. Korum	4,730	299.92
3. Stensgaard	4,700	7,395.00

LIBERAL PARTY SUPPORT ASKED IN NO. DAKOTA

State Committee is Organized at Meeting Held in Bismarck Today

TRAISE NONPARTY LEAGUE

A North Dakota committee of two proposed Liberal party was named at a conference here today in Odd Fellows hall, presided over by F. A. H. Hopkins of New York, of the Committee of 48.

J. W. Deemy Mrs. C. G. Boise and J. H. Caldwell, all of Bismarck, were named president, vice-president, and secretary, respectively, of the organization committee. The organization committee, it is expected, will name representatives in various counties.

Resolutions adopted declared that the time has come for all liberals to unite and solidify their support nationally through the medium of a Liberal party organized in preparation for the 1924 campaign, and proposed to adopt the name Liberal Party.

The proposed Liberal party would advocate public control of national resources, public ownership of railroads, equal rights and abolition of privilege.

Resolutions adopted voiced faith in the Nonpartisan league and the three recalled officials, saying their recall was made possible through misrepresentation, and urged that "not only as a vindication but as a distinct benefit to the cause of the people, these men be returned to public life, and that members of the Committee of 48 in North Dakota would especially welcome the opportunity of voting for either Lynn J. Frazier, William Lemke or John Hagan for United States Senator, unless it should be found more advisable to return these men to their former offices."

Nelson A. Mason, who was secretary to Governor Frazier, presided. Commissioner of Insurance S. A. Olness is a representative of the Committee of 48. About 20 persons were present most of them from Bismarck.

3 BURNED TO DEATH IN FIRE AT MOVIE SHOW

Believed That Fire Resulted From Incense Being Burned On the Stage

New Haven Conn., Nov. 28.—Three lives were lost and 79 persons were more or less seriously injured when fire broke out in the Rialto motion picture theater here last night. Forty-eight persons who were either burned or trampled when the panic-stricken crowd surged toward the doors as the flames swept into the theater from the stage were in hospitals today. All will recover, it was said.

Only one body, that of Timothy J. Hanlon, 58, had been identified this morning. It was believed he was trampled to death as examination of his injuries showed his neck was broken.

Coroner Mix began an official inquiry today.

"We are inclined to the belief," he said, "that the fire might have been kindled by incense burned during the photoplay being shown. This play, 'The Shield,' was being given an Oriental setting and incense was being burned on the stage. It may be that the flames caught some debris and dropped onto the stage."

MENOKEN FIRE LOSS $12,000

Bank and Store Building Are Burned Up

The Menoken Farmers Bank building and the Menoken Mercantile company's store burned Saturday night. The fire, which started in the basement of the mercantile company, is of unknown origin.

Both the buildings, which were frame, were covered by insurance. The total loss is estimated at $12,000. The mercantile company is owned by Joseph and John Meers of Napoleon.

MARSHAL OF FRANCE TOUCHES SPIRIT OF WEST, IS DELIGHTED; SMOKES INDIAN PIPE OF PEACE

Accepts Gift From Red Tomahawk and is Thrilled at Reception Unlike Anything He Had Before Seen in America—Thousands of People Hail Commander of Allied Armies During World War in Parade and in City Auditorium—Flowers Presented by War Mothers and Legion Auxiliary.

Marshal Ferdinand Foch touched the spirit of the great west for the first time in Bismarck Sunday.

The grave countenance of the first soldier of the world quickly caught the spirit; he was thrilled and delighted; he beamed smiles and reflected happiness and appreciation, and he left Bismarck with a parting word of assurance that he had received a reception unique in character, magnificent in its sincerity.

The Marshal of France when he arrived in Bismarck on a special train at 11 o'clock Sunday marched down a carpeted walk between rows of khaki-clad service men, he walked with the firm step of a trained soldier into the arms of grateful thousands who had put in him their trust in the darkest days of the great war, he relaxed, thrust himself in their care and responded to the spontaneous welcome with a captivating smile. He spoke with the tact of a diplomat, and with a sincerity that was not to be denied.

Marshal Foch left Fargo early in the morning for his first trip across the great prairies from whence came men and food for his direction and his aid. He exhibited a keen interest in the wide expanses, hailed with enthusiasm the spirit of a new and growing land.

His Message to North Dakota
—Before he left Bismarck he penned this message, handed from the train, containing his impressions of North Dakota:

"Truly a marvelous state! Its grandeur is almost overpowering. I was impressed by the miles and miles of rolling land—fertile land. The thought came to me as I gazed upon this land that when it is thickly populated, what a country you will have. Some day it will be thickly populated, and when that comes, think of what the population of North Dakota—of the entire United States will be. North Dakota has a wonderful future."

Marshal Foch is known as a warrior supreme. He exhibited two other phases of his character here Sunday. He had directed that a wire be sent ahead to the local committee to arrange time for him to attend mass at St. Mary's Cathedral, and asked that no publicity be given to this performance of his religious duty.

Just before he left the Auditorium the great soldier turned to a little Indian woman, head and shoulders draped in a dark shawl, advanced to her and shook her hand. She was the mother of young Chief Albert Grass, of the Sioux Indians, who died on the battlefields of France.

Acclaimed On Every Side
From the time Marshal Foch arrived until he left he was acclaimed on every hand. He left Bismarck with a new name—Charging Thunder—bestowed by Red Tomahawk in behalf of the Dakotah (Sioux) nation. He smoked the pipe of peace with the chief, cementing forever the friendship of the Dakotah nation and the French nation. He clasped warmly the hand of Red Tomahawk as the latter uttered the simple words: "My Friend." He received graciously the pipe of peace and courteously and attentively listened to Tomahawk's remarks.

Three languages were used in the ceremony, the Indian dialect, English and French. The Marshal puffed the pipe, after Tomahawk had made a presentation speech, lighted the pipe and himself smoked it. With the pipe, made by the Indians, was a gorgeous, beaded tobacco pouch.

The name Charging Thunder—in Indian dialect Watakté Wakiya—was bestowed with accompanying chant from the score of Indians from the Standing Rock agency, clad in native costumes and in full war paint, singing songs composed especially in honor of the Marshal.

The Marshal and his party, on arrival rode in a short parade led by the band with cheering people on every hand. The parade paused in front of the Federal building where hundreds of school children and Boy Scouts were assembled, and the Marshal smiled as they cheered and waved flag. He rode along the way under colors of France and America stretched above the streets.

Thousands On The Streets
An immense crowd sought entrance to the Auditorium. Two thousand people crowded into every available space while thousands failed to get in. Visitors were here from many towns, yet the inability to travel on some roads and the fact that the special on the North Soo could not run because of a freight train wreck reduced numbers somewhat. The Auditorium was gaily decorated with colors of the two nations while many in the audience carried small flags which they waved as they rose time and again to cheer.

The Marshal's visit to America was explained by Hanford MacNider, commander of the Legion, as doing more to cement the lasting friendship of the allies in the world war than all the diplomatic conferences and interchanges.

MANDAN CROWD CHEERS FOCH
The auditorium was filled long before the parade had ended, but people squeezed into every available space. An orchestra played during the wait. The Community chorus was seated on the lower floor to the left, and seats had been reserved for members of the War Mothers and members of the Legion Auxiliary.

Philip R. Bangs, of Grand Forks, commander of the North Dakota department of the American Legion, presided. He introduced first Hanford MacNider of Iowa National Commander of the American Legion.

"I think it takes an occasion like this to make us appreciate what a great and powerful organization the Legion is," said Mr. MacNider. "Just think, the greatest soldier in the world comes here, places himself in their care, they meet him at quarantine, arrange his tour of the country, and will put him on a boat to return to France."

Mr. MacNider told a story of Marshal Foch and the American Legion party which visited France. A parade was being held at the time of burial of the Unknown Soldier. There is a tradition among the French that only French soldiers may pass under the triumphal arch erected in Paris. The American Legion men in the party were just behind the French.

An officer spoke to Marshal Foch and said it was impossible for the Americans to pass under the arch.

Marshal Foch simply replied: "The American soldier never turns back, and the Legion party went under the arch," said Mr. MacNider. A tradition of a century had been broken by Marshal Foch, who paid an honor to the American soldier.

Kim Doolittle, former commander of the American Legion, presided at the banquet.

IOWA TO ASSUME DICTATORSHIP OF THE BIG TEN

This Seems To Be the General
Attitude, According to Coach Jones

TALKING 1922 SCHEDULES

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Comes now the business of drafting football schedules for the 1922 season.

Coaches of the Western Conference will meet here a week from today to map out the gridiron programs for next year and because of the spectacular windup of the 1921 race, gridiron followers are indulging in a lot of speculation regarding the schedules of Ohio State and Iowa, who fought out this year's championship.

The eastern invasion of Chicago which resulted in a 9 to 6 triumph over Princeton, has started a movement for east vs. west games next season. Chicago already has arranged to play Princeton in a return game here early in October, and Iowa, 1921 conference champion, and who to advance indications probably will arrange a game with Yale to be played in the east. Illinois is negotiating for a game with a representative Southern eleven to be played in Memphis, while Michigan is considering a game with Vanderbilt for the second week in October.

What the Iowa schedule will be next fall there is no way of determining. Howard Jones, coach of the triumphant Hawkeyes, and Jack Wilce, coach of the Ohio eleven, may decide to arrange a game for next year in view of the fact that these teams did not meet this year.

Followers of the championship Hawkeyes are planning a wonderful schedule for Iowa, but Coach Jones is laughing up his sleeve at the proposals.

"It seems to be the general attitude that Iowa must at once assume a position of dictator in the Big Ten," Coach Jones said. "Perhaps every one does not carry it quite that far, but on every hand there seems to be a great misunderstanding of conditions in the Big Ten and of the methods employed in working out schedules. It would be most unfortunate if some of the old conference rivalries would be interfered with. Such rivalries as those between Ohio and Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin, and Indiana and Purdue cannot be broken just because Iowa had a successful team. Just now Iowa takes particular interest in the games with Minnesota and Illinois and we are anxious to continue playing these teams.

"We probably will have a game with Yale next year, largely because Chicago substituted Princeton for Iowa on its schedule for 1921. However, there is no quarrel between Chicago and Iowa. Iowa would prefer to play teams in the Big Ten rather to go east, but it is not always possible to agree all around."

Although Ohio State's schedule is still very much in an embryo state, it is almost certain to include Oberlin, Ohio Wesleyan, Minnesota, Michigan, Illinois and Chicago. Ohio Wesleyan and Oberlin are the two oldest foes in Ohio State's football history and it is doubtful if they will disappear from the Buckeye schedule. Coach Wilce is anxious to play Oberlin next fall because of the upset given the Buckeyes at the start of last season.

Ohio has made overtures for a game with California, the latter part of October to be played in Ohio's new $1,200,000 stadium, which will seat 63,000 persons, but the negotiations have not reached the stage of certainty. The Ohio eleven is booked to appear at Illinois and Minnesota next fall, while the Michigan and Chicago games probably will be scheduled for the Ohio State stadium.

L. W. St. John, director of athletics at Ohio State, believes it is better for Ohio State to confine itself to competition within the Western conference, aside from the usual preliminary games, rather than to play a team in the east.

"We are playing our natural opponents now," said Director St. John. Coach Zuppke, at Illinois, is expected to continue his curtailed schedule of but five conference games. The Illini mentor formerly played a hard six-game schedule, but this year broke the long grind by a game with DePaul between the Michigan and Chicago contests. There is still talk in Urbana of a game with Harvard, but George Huff, director of athletics, has steadfastly refused to play a team in the east unless that team would agree to a return game on Illinois field the following year. Illinois will play Chicago here next season and will also play several other regulars on their home gridirons, including Wisconsin at Madison, and Michigan at Ann Arbor. Iowa and Ohio State will probably play at Urbana to round out the quintet of the games.

The schedules of all conference teams will be limited to seven games, as in the past. This program usually includes two practice games with smaller colleges.

H. JONES, COACH, PRAISES DEVINE

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 26.—Howard Jones, coach of the University of Iowa football team, says Captain Aubrey Devine, the Hawkeye quarterback, is "the greatest all-around backfield man" he has ever coached or "ever seen in recent years."

Jones, who coached Yale's championship eleven in 1913, had Coy and Philbin, two all-American backfield selections in his machine of that year, while in his own days as a gridiron star, he played on the same Yale team with his brother "Tad," an all-American quarterback.

"Others have been as great in open field running, there may have been better punters and there may have been his equal in drop kicking, but I have never known of any player who

$2,000,000 FIRE IN AUGUSTA, GA.

Five-story Building is Destroyed
in Early Morning Fire

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 26.—Nearly one half block at Broad and Jackson streets in the heart of Augusta's business section was destroyed by fire early today with a loss of about $2,000,000.

The fire started about 2 o'clock in the five-story Johnson building and was not brought under control until daylight, after fire departments from Savannah, Atlanta, Aitkin, Macon, Charleston and Waynesboro had been summoned. The Aitkin fire department was the only one to arrive in time to aid.

While the main fire was raging another broke out in the 400 block of Jackson street, gutting three buildings.

The origin of both fires has not been determined.

RUNNING FIGHT IN MILL CITY

WHO PAYS FOR FOLLY?

Men and women do not understand each other. Woman is so mysterious. Man is a dumb creature. So runs the popular opinion. Whatever the cause, this lack of understanding produces tragedy.

Consider the matter of loyalty in absence. The engaged man usually is certain about the stability of the girl's emotions while he is away. He knows she will not flirt. Doesn't he love her just because she is so honest?

An he expects to play a fair game while separated from her.

But temptation comes—not always very big—but too alluring to be thrust aside; and afterward if the girl back home finds out, does he have the least idea how badly she feels?

He seldom does. Therefore the following sad letter may reveal a little of the kind of hurt from which any engaged girl would suffer if she had occasion to write a similar story.

"I have been engaged for several years to a man much liked and respected in our community. I wear his ring. Our friends have congratulated us.

"This summer we passed a vacation at the same camp. The man was called home suddenly to see his dying mother. He asked me to help him pack. Accidentally, I came upon ardent love letters he had received from another girl.

"He is a college man. The letters were poorly written and revealed the girl as an impudent little adventuress. I was shocked to discover that the man I adored could tolerate a girl of her kind.

"After his mother's funeral, I told him what I knew.

"He laughed at me.

"She's just a jolly little kid," he explained. "I took her to lunch twice and ever since she has pestered me with mail."

"There are so many letters. You must have answered her," said I.

"He does not comprehend how deeply I am hurt! I kept faith with him. I could have had many friends, but I kept my promise while he broke his.

"I wanted to release him, but he would not take back his ring. He said he ought not to pay so huge a penalty for a 'passing folly!'

"A passing folly!" He broke his word to me—and calls it a 'passing folly!' After we are married will breaking his word to his wife mean anything more than that to my husband?

"My trust and my respect for him are gone. I know what 'his word' means when he gives it to another man. Why should it mean something different when given to a woman?

"He says I do not understand. I answer that I understand truth easily enough. I can see that it is the absence of truth between them which

SHERIDAN HOUSE, RENAMED THE NORTHWEST HOTEL, WAS KNOWN AS PALACE OF THE FRONTIER

It Was For Many Years The Center of The Romance Of the West

WAS BUILT BY BLY IN 1877

When the Sheridan House burned to the ground here a month ago many of the longtime residents of Bismarck felt that the "Old West" with its romance of arms and cattle and Indians had passed forever. Of course it was not the Sheridan House on the morning it burned. Commerce had decreed its soul of wood should be veneered with brick and that it should be renamed the "Northwest Hotel" but to the men and women who were its habitués when it was the palace of the frontier it still was the Sheridan House of bronzed troops, of shy scout and silent and impressive Indian.

Built in the comparatively modern year of 1877, modern as viewed by the standards of states of hoary age, the Sheridan House was for years the center of the romance of the west. Its year of building followed by a single summer the death in the Little Big Horn of Custer, the "Bear Sabre" of the army. It was from this point that most of the punitive expeditions as well as missions of peaceful intent that followed that event, started into the Indian country. While the records that might be definite have been burned, there is enough of certainty in the minds of men and women now living to reconstruct a part of that life and romance. Many of the pioneers who sought to build an empire along the Missouri are still alive and from bits of scrap books, a satin menu card, a knick knack from some tiled hand, a part of the history of the Sheridan House and therefore of the west can be resurrected.

Even the building of the hotel was not commonplace. Some time in '75 or '76 E. A. Bly had associated with him a N. Fletcher an early time congressman from Minnesota brought $250,000 in cash to Bismarck. In his time he erected three hotels, one in Minnesota the headquarters here at Fargo and the Sheridan House at Bismarck. The last two structures at least were built on the same plans. With the passing of the Sheridan House by flames, all three hotels ended their existence in flames.

Pet of Its Builder

The Sheridan House was the pet of its builder and he personally managed it for several years after it was erected. With one of the largest sums of money ever brought to the Dakotas Mr. Bly was a victim of conditions and bad judgment and he died penniless, his demise occurring in a hotel near the hotel he had built and managed. One of his projects was the erection of a sawmill on the banks of the Missouri river to convert the timber that then covered the bottom lands into ties for the Northern Pacific railroad. The work was completed at a cost of $80,000 but with the coming of spring the waters of the Missouri failed to rise to the heights sufficient to float the ties down the river and the entire investment was a loss.

In 1877, when the Sheridan House was erected, Bismarck was the "End of the Road." Faced with the gigantic task of bridging the Missouri river the Northern Pacific had stopped its westward march and was the outpost of "Civilization." It was at that time the farthest west railroad point in this part of the country. Officers and soldiers going to the forts in the Indian country arrived from the Sheridan House, and those returning there for a day or two and then by foot by lighter or horseback or on foot they plunged on across the plains to Fort Yates and the Black Hills to the south to Fort Clark or if very lucky made the short journey to Fort A. Lincoln just across the Missouri river.

From Cattle Ranges

Coming from the cattle ranges of the Red Lands and forts of the west the Sheridan House was the first meeting place of the west to the weary travelers a palace where a bath and a shave were among the luxuries of the time. Setting their faces to the west the traveler paused here for one last day in the world to which he was accustomed. In the first days of the Sheridan House the Northern Pacific closed during the winter and opened with the beginning of navigation in the spring. It was in this period that many of the best remembered occasions of the house was staged. In the fall wives of army officers who had spent the summer in the Indian lands, or in the forts set at convenient spots along the river would come down and up the river to take train here for their homes in the east. Generally their husbands came with them and enjoyed the comforts of civilization in the days between arrival and the departure of the next boat for the post. On this day the wife would turn to the east and the officer husband back to the approaching winter wilderness, but in the days between, with many such couples present the hostelry was the center of life. In the spring the return would bring the same people back to the hotel to be the same center of gale that they had been in the fall.

In the days of Indian fighting the old hotel welcomed and was host to practically every man who was connected with the conquest of the region. This was true, not only of the men who fought under the colors of the United States but Col. Walsh of the Northwest Mounted Police made it his headquarters for reaching all of the then Indian tenanted territory of the Canadian to the north and west. Custer a familiar figure in this territory before the hotel was erected had passed on before but in the days of Indian warfare the young braves and some times higher officers known later as generals so-and-so were all present. In those days of Indian warfare men known later as General Sturgis, General Miles, General Jigs, General Wesley, Merritt, General Thomas, H. Ruger, General Hugh Scott, General Alfred H. Terry, General Phil Sheridan, for whom the house was named, General Sherman, General Hancock, General Schofield, General MacDougal, General Crowder and Col. MacLaughlin were guests as their duties called them to the west. General Crowder's work in the last war is well remembered, while Col. MacLaughlin, eighty years of age and with intense desire to die in the harness still is connected with the Indian service, being its chief of Indian inspectors. The names of several however, are carried in the present service by their sons.

2,000 People Acclaim Him.

As Marshal Foch and his party entered a little later a tremendous burst of enthusiasm and appreciation greeted him. The 2,000 people crowded in the auditorium stood up, cheered and waved flags. The marshal smiled his appreciation. He turned as he stood there and bent a curious gaze upon the Indians assembled, noted their painted faces and highly-colored costumes.

The members of the Foch party were introduced. First was General Desticker, his chief of staff, and a foremost soldier of France. Col. Frank Parker U. S. A., honorary aide and commander of the First Division in the Argonne as major-general, was introduced. He acted as interpreter for Marshal Foch. The crowd cheered. Comte de Chambrun, diplomatic representative and great grandson of the Marquis de Lafayette. Others of the party included Major de Merry, Lieut. de Souheyran, confidential secretary to the marshal, Col. Francis Drake, past commander Department of France, American Legion, Raymond Brackett, vice-commander, American Legion, Col. James A. Drain, commanding district of Columbia American Legion, Capt. C. E. McCullough, in charge of transportation, Pennsylvania railroad, Capt. J. M. Loughborough, in charge of information, Miles McCahill, secret service, Earl A. Meyer, American Legion News Service, Richard Seeley Jones, editor Stars and Stripes.

North Dakota representatives on the train from Fargo here were Philip R. Bangs state commander American Legion, Jack Williams, state adjutant, Adjutant General H. W. Hanley, member Legion national reception committee, Charles Boyle and M. W. Murphy, representing Fargo Legion posts.

Governor Vestos was introduced by Mr. Bangs to extend greeting to Marshal Foch on behalf of the state of North Dakota.

"We are met here today under the folds of the red, white and blue of the two greatest Republics on earth," said Governor Vestos, as he began a comparison of the traditions and the fight of both Republics for liberty. He paid a high tribute to Marshal Foch in declaring that "the biography of this man is the story of the war."

"We want him to see the prairies of North Dakota from which came not only splendid soldiers but from which came some of the cattle and the grain which supplied the fighting armies," said the governor. In concluding his brief remarks.

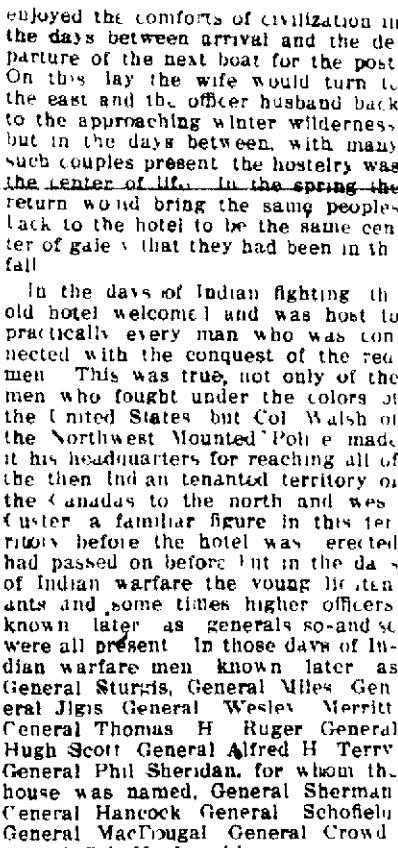

In introducing Marshal Foch Mr. Bangs said he little dreamed when he was a back private in France three years ago he would have the opportunity of introducing the greatest soldier of the world at a meeting here.

Marshal Foch rose to speak. Again the great crowd sprang to its feet, and hand clapping and cheering sounded and resounded in the building. At Marshal Foch's side too was Colonel Frank Parker U. S. A. who acted as interpreter of the marshal's speech which was in French repeating his words after each short expression. The full import of the marshal's speech thus was felt by the audience which burst forth time and again in applause.

The question has often been asked who won the war said Marshal Foch. The answer is very simple. We all won the war because we wanted to.

The marshal said that a minute ago the governor alluded to the similarity of colors of America and France and in that similarity he found also a similarity of principles and added that is that similarity and identity of

"And therefore I wish to come out to this state of North Dakota to bring the deep gratitude of the French nation and to tell you in person all this great state has done in the war," Marshal Foch said. He expressed a deep appreciation of the affectionate greeting accorded him.

"I find here this morning and I feel very strongly this feeling that existed between our nations from the days of Lafayette until the present time," he said. He declared his belief in the future of the state and declared that he believed her people would as faithfully as they had helped during the war carry on "the conquest of a great and just peace."

Cheers were renewed as the marshal completed his short address, delivered in pleasing and even tone in French, sincerely and forcefully expressing his sentiments as the occasion moved him.

Marshal Foch then was presented with flowers by the Fort Lincoln Chapter of the American War Mothers and the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion Little Peggy Jane Skeels, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Master William Welsh, Corwin son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Corwin carried out the bouquet of flowers of the Auxiliary and received a kiss and an affectionate pat from Marshal Foch.

The ceremony then turned to the Indian presentation. Chief Red Tomahawk, the man who killed Sitting Bull, was introduced to Marshal Foch. As Red Tomahawk extended his right hand the Marshal clasped it with both hands.

Red Tomahawk began a talk designating Marshal Foch as "My Friend." He explained that he and his party of Indians were trying their best to make things as pleasant as possible for Marshal Foch.

At Means, interpreted, repeated the import of Red Tomahawk's talk in English and General Parlier repeated it in French to the Marshal. Red Tomahawk introduced his friend Major Welch and remarked that perhaps Marshal Foch had seen him over in France.

The speech of presentation of the pipe of peace then began.

Red Tomahawk explained that whenever he wanted to make a friend he did it by extending the pipe of peace with ash stem and stone bowl emblematic of the Master William Welsh, Corwin son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Corwin carried out the bouquet of flowers of the Auxiliary and received a kiss and an affectionate pat from Marshal Foch.

The ceremony then turned to the Indian presentation. Chief Red Tomahawk, the man who killed Sitting Bull, was introduced to Marshal Foch. As Red Tomahawk extended his right hand the Marshal clasped it with both hands.

Red Tomahawk began a talk designating Marshal Foch as "My Friend." He explained that he and his party of Indians were trying their best to make things as pleasant as possible for Marshal Foch.

At Means, interpreted, repeated the import of Red Tomahawk's talk in English and General Parlier repeated it in French to the Marshal. Red Tomahawk introduced his friend Major Welch and remarked that perhaps Marshal Foch had seen him over in France.

The speech of presentation of the pipe of peace then began.

Red Tomahawk explained that whenever he wanted to make a friend he did it by extending the pipe of peace with ash stem and stone bowl emblematic of the

NO, THEY'RE NOT ON STILTS

King Christian of Denmark, the tallest monarch of Europe. His height evidently was inherited from his mother, if you will notice her height in the picture. Compare it to that of the woman who watched the king and his mother as they went forth to receive a huge flag from the city of Copenhagen on the queen mother's 70th birthday anniversary.

principles and interest that so closely bind the two countries.

And even far in the west the people of North Dakota were united with all America and America united with France in the war, he said.

Glad to Visit State.

"And therefore I wish to come out to this state of North Dakota to bring the deep gratitude of the French nation and to tell you in person all this great state has done in the war," Marshal Foch said. He expressed a deep appreciation of the affectionate greeting accorded him.

"I find here this morning and I feel very strongly this feeling that existed between our nations from the days of Lafayette until the present time," he said. He declared his belief in the future of the state and declared that he believed her people would as faithfully as they had helped during the war carry on "the conquest of a great and just peace."

MARSHAL OF FRANCE TOUCHES SPIRIT OF WEST IS DELIGHTED

er of the American Legion preceded Mr. MacNider with a few remarks.

2,000 People Acclaim Him.

As Marshal Foch and his party entered a little later a tremendous burst of enthusiasm and appreciation greeted him. The 2,000 people crowded in the auditorium stood up, cheered and waved flags. The marshal smiled his appreciation. He turned as he stood there and bent a curious gaze upon the Indians assembled, noted their painted faces and highly-colored costumes.

The members of the Foch party were introduced. First was General Desticker, his chief of staff, and a foremost soldier of France. Col. Frank Parker U. S. A., honorary aide and commander of the First Division in the Argonne as major-general, was introduced. He acted as interpreter for Marshal Foch. The crowd cheered. Comte de Chambrun, diplomatic representative and great grandson of the Marquis de Lafayette. Others of the party included Major de Merry, Lieut. de Souheyran, confidential secretary to the marshal, Col. Francis Drake, past commander Department of France, American Legion, Raymond Brackett, vice-commander, American Legion, Col. James A. Drain, commanding district of Columbia American Legion, Capt. C. E. McCullough, in charge of transportation, Pennsylvania railroad, Capt. J. M. Loughborough, in charge of information, Miles McCahill, secret service, Earl A. Meyer, American Legion News Service, Richard Seeley Jones, editor Stars and Stripes.

North Dakota representatives on the train from Fargo here were Philip R. Bangs state commander American Legion, Jack Williams, state adjutant, Adjutant General H. W. Hanley, member Legion national reception committee, Charles Boyle and M. W. Murphy, representing Fargo Legion posts.

Governor Vestos was introduced by Mr. Bangs to extend greeting to Marshal Foch on behalf of the state of North Dakota.

"We are met here today under the folds of the red, white and blue of the two greatest Republics on earth," said Governor Vestos, as he began a comparison of the traditions and the fight of both Republics for liberty. He paid a high tribute to Marshal Foch in declaring that "the biography of this man is the story of the war."

"We want him to see the prairies of North Dakota from which came not only splendid soldiers but from which came some of the cattle and the grain which supplied the fighting armies," said the governor. In concluding his brief remarks.

In introducing Marshal Foch Mr. Bangs said he little dreamed when he was a back private in France three years ago he would have the opportunity of introducing the greatest soldier of the world at a meeting here.

Marshal Foch rose to speak. Again the great crowd sprang to its feet, and hand clapping and cheering sounded and resounded in the building. At Marshal Foch's side too was Colonel Frank Parker U. S. A. who acted as interpreter of the marshal's speech which was in French repeating his words after each short expression. The full import of the marshal's speech thus was felt by the audience which burst forth time and again in applause.

The question has often been asked who won the war said Marshal Foch. The answer is very simple. We all won the war because we wanted to.

The marshal said that a minute ago the governor alluded to the similarity of colors of America and France and in that similarity he found also a similarity of principles and added that is that similarity and identity of principles and interest that so closely bind the two countries.

And even far in the west the people of North Dakota were united with all America and America united with France in the war, he said.

Glad to Visit State.

"And therefore I wish to come out to this state of North Dakota to bring the deep gratitude of the French nation and to tell you in person all this great state has done in the war," Marshal Foch said. He expressed a deep appreciation of the affectionate greeting accorded him.

He declared his belief in the future of the state and declared that he believed her people would as faithfully as they had helped during the war carry on "the conquest of a great and just peace."

"I hail Dakota then and its great future which stretches before my eyes and I wish for you the very best the future years may bring," the marshal concluded. Cheers were renewed as the marshal completed his short address, delivered in pleasing and even tone in French, sincerely and forcefully expressing his sentiments as the occasion moved him.

FOCH IS TOLD WEST'S HISTORY

Pamphlet is Specially Prepared By Northern Pacific

A pamphlet containing bits of Northwest history with particular reference to the part taken by French men was prepared for Marshal Foch by the Northern Pacific railway. The pamphlet contains history of all the territory traversed by Marshal Foch from the Twin Cities to the North Pacific Coast.

The French were the first explorers of the Northwest. The pamphlet tells the story of Jean Nicolet, who in 1634 visited the Sault Ste. Marie in northern Michigan and eastern Wisconsin. Among the others were Grouseillers and Robinson, Anthony Aguelille and Father Hennepin, La Salle and Marquette. A French voyager, Novon, probably was the first white man to visit northern Minnesota in about 1685.

The Bad Lands of North Dakota and the part taken by Theodore Roosevelt and Marquis de Mores is told together with Indian lore and the struggles of the hardy pioneers in the great Northwest.

The Lewis and Clark exploration is detailed. The pamphlet contains this invitation to Marshal Foch for another visit.

"Marshal Foch should visit the United States and our Northwest again—in the summer season. Now he sees it in its robe of white, and he will know where Minnesota's Ten Thousand Lakes and our great rivers obtain their stores of moisture in summer, and the prairies plains and valleys their fruitfulness waters."

FOCH COMMANDS N. DAKOTA LEGION

Marshal Ferdinand Foch is now an ex-commander of the North Dakota Department of the American Legion.

Commander Bangs appointed Marshal Foch commander in his stead during the Marshal's stay in Bismarck. The Marshal accepted the honor and before he left presented his resignation "because I am leaving the state."

SCHWAB PLACES PRIVATE CAR AT FUCH'S DISPOSAL

The private car in which Marshal Foch rides on his trip was placed at his disposal by Charles Schwab, the steel magnate. The car cost him was presented to him by Charles Gordon of Gordon Ferguson and company.

Marshal Foch's next stop was at Billings, Mont. this morning. He was adopted by the Crow Indians there and viewed the Custer battlefield.

The transportation of his special train was in charge of Col. McCullough, for the Pennsylvania railroad.

The Northern Pacific railroad prepared a pamphlet especially for the Marshal telling of the part French men took in the development of this section of the country.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

FOCH'S RECEPTION

Bismarck responded loyally and gave Marshal Foch a reception from the heart.

The American Legion, both state and local posts, are to be congratulated upon the efficient manner in which the affair was handled.

Local arrangements were carefully made and efficiently carried out. It was an inspiring ceremony and a day that will be long remembered in the annals of the city.

Little did the people of this city three years ago think they would see and hear the man who held the Germans at bay on the Marne and later devised much of the strategy that won the war.

The presentation of the Pipe of Peace by a chief of the Sioux tribe was most appropriate. Two warriors of different epochs faced each other, in a most significant ceremony. One represented a departed glory, a system now reconciled to modern pursuits. The other is the emissary of new ideals and the earnest advocate of peace and gradual disarmament.

Marshal Foch was initiated here first into the interesting symbolism of Indian lore. His party enjoyed it to such an extent that Foch himself joined in the dancing. Today Foch is to be made a chief on the Little Crow reservation and to view Custer's battlefield.

His reception here was unique and he took away with him the warmth of the spirit of the West.

YOUR POWER

Tears come to the eyes of Marshal Foch, and for 10 minutes he forgets that he is at a banquet in Boston, as he talks to a war veteran, blinded in both eyes.

It is an admirable sidelight on the humane character of the greatest Frenchman, who was entrusted with the lives of 10,000,000 soldiers.

The blinded veteran is Lieutenant Guy Envin. Like Foch, you pity him for his loss of sight.

Yet Envin is studying international law at Harvard, a task that is extremely difficult even to those with perfect sight. It is an inspiring instance of what man can accomplish, despite any handicap, if he keeps his fighting spirit alive.

Ben Welch, the comedian, went blind a year ago. Did he become discouraged—give up the fight? No.

In the presence of witnesses, including the mayor of Providence, R. I., Welch burned his insurance disability policy that would have paid him $10,000 in a lump sum or $75 a week for the rest of his life.

Now Welch is traveling about the country, headlining in vaudeville, as in the old days. He even refuses to carry a cane.

A friend, dressed as a policeman, leads him out on the stage. Sitting on a bench, the famous comedian forgets that he is blind, and cheers his audience with a rapid-fire of jests.

Blindness would make most of us down-hearted. But Welch says that it has only made him more anxious to cheer up others.

"Life," says he, "is too short to quit working."

The cases of Ben Welch and Lieutenant Envin should change the whole mental attitude of any man who has become discouraged by obstacles.

The great men of history became great, almost entirely because of the obstacles they overcame.

The most popular printed stories involve some form of contest—desperate chances, disheartening odds, seemingly insurmountable barriers.

The popularity of such stories proves that, in every person, there is the instinctive desire and the ability to overcome obstacles.

Don't be discouraged. Keep your fighting spirit. You can overcome anything if you so will. Obstacles are placed in your path to develop your powers. They are the gymnasium exercises of life, training you to handle big things.

GAIN

Farmer are wondering how much they will benefit by the 10 per cent reduction in carload freight rates on farm products.

The best answer comes from the railroads, which say the cut will cost them $55,000,000 a year.

Divide that up among our 6,500,000 farms and the average farmer's gain would be $8.46 a year. That is, if the farmer gets it.

The reduction is so slight that it is apparent not apt to make any material change either in what the farmer gets or the consumer pays.

BLAZE

A $30,000 fire in Chicago is due to spontaneous combustion, a common fire cause. Spontaneous combustion is a fire that breaks out, by chemical processes, without a lighted match or other flame to start it.

Flour mills occasionally blow up, spontaneous combustion exploding the flour. Heavy dust on factory rafters often explodes or starts burning the same way.

To avoid spontaneous combustion in your home keep oily rags and the like in a tin can with the lid on tightly.

FOOLED

Eighty-three young men cheer as they step off a ship in New York. Two months ago, they enlisted in the Spanish army to fight the Moors. Arriving in Africa, they found their pay was to be 60 cents a day. Out of that, they were supposed to buy their own uniforms, food, arms and ammunition.

Those adventurous young Americans who have not returned home from Spanish army headquarters are scattered over Spain, planting onions and sweeping out bullrings.

The pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow usually turns out to be empty.

FOOD AND BRAINS

The world's largest captive snake—a python, 25 feet long—is brought from Malay jungle to the National Zoological park in Washington.

You can watch it safely in its glass cage, for it has no brain to tell it that it could smash its way to freedom by hurling its 250 pounds against the glass.

No trouble on the journey across the Pacific. Snake slept all the way. Its last meal in the Orient was a large pig, crushed in the python's powerful coils and swallowed whole.

After its meal, the python sleeps three weeks.

Are you like the python? Do you eat too much at noon, then feel loggy and drowsy for hours?

Employers may not know it, but the real reason they want office workers down early in the morning is because breakfast is a light meal. With the stomach lightly burdened until noon, efficiency runs high.

In the afternoon, with several pecks of corned beef and cabbage and a pie a la mode in the stomach, there is a tendency to yawn, gaze trance-like out the window and manifest general fog in the head.

Like shoveling too much coal in the furnace. It puts out the fire.

An empty stomach and a keen brain are Siamese twins. That is why poverty produces so many geniuses.

Dryden's stomach was habitually so empty that he sold 10,000 verses to Tanson for $1500.

Teller, inventor of cold storage, starved to death. His invention probably came from wondering how he could preserve a lot of food if he ever managed to get it.

Camoens, Portugal's greatest poet, died of starvation in a Lisbon hospital.

Tens of thousands of similar cases. From them came the popular notion that fortune frowns on men of genius. Truth is, they would not have been geniuses without the empty stomach of poverty.

Writers and business men often say they can think better late at night. That is because midnight finds their food partly digested, their stomachs lightly burdened.

Recipe for stupidity and failure: Stuff the stomach.

KEEPING UP THE SURTAX

Political cowardice won in the House, as it had already won in the Senate, when approval was given by a fairly close vote to the fifty per cent maximum for income surtaxes.

The House had originally voted for a thirty-two per cent maximum instead of the present maximum of sixty-five per cent. But in spite of the pleas of the Republican leaders, in spite of the eleventh-hour intervention of the President who sought to save what he could of political honor and economic judgment by a compromise on forty per cent, the Senate figure was approved for the conference committee.

The reduction in surtaxes thus to be accomplished is much too small to be of any account. The Government will under the new law, as under the old, seize for public purposes—liquid capital that ought to go into quickening enterprise, re-vivifying business and reducing unemployment. The great incomes will continue to go into tax-exempt securities and escape the huge surtaxes. The reflex effect on labor with its unemployment, on industry with its need of new capital, on agriculture with its equal necessity for loans, will be depressive.

But the politicians of Congress are too much engrossed in cozening the public, in making a magnificent gesture of "punishing wealth" and "soaking the millionaire," to put into effect the true principles of taxation and economic progress—Minneapolis Journal.

DR. ADOLF LORENZ AND HIS MIRACLE WORKING HANDS

BY EDWARD THIERREY

New York Nov. 28.—The most wonderful hands in the world belong to Dr. Adolf Lorenz.

With them he can work greater miracles than the greatest painter, sculptor or artist. These can only add pleasure to life.

But Lorenz's hands are worth millions. They can restore the crippled and the deformed to full use. He is the Vienna doctor who years ago cured Lolita Amour of a hip dislocation.

Lorenz who is 66, has spent his life curing crippled children whom other surgeons gave up as hopeless. He is in America to continue this work—he will treat poor children free in order he says to repay America for food role to Austrian children.

A tall, sure long white whiskers, thin white hair twinkling blue eyes, "that's Lorenz."

"Hands up!" he smiled and held up his hands. That means friendliness—but it's also a display of his water. These hands are my tools—my instruments of painless surgery.

Yes, they're strong. And in all these years they've acquired a little skill, perhaps. You see no muscles standing out but the sinews are there.

My hands are just as strong to-day as when I was here 15 years ago. They must be kept strong—they have much important work to do for humanity.

"I'm sorry my son couldn't come with me. He's doing the same work. We ought to use our hands but sometimes, the knife. He'll take my place eventually.

Lorenz's skill is so great that he can cure any leg he wants—and get it. But—

I never ask a fee from the poor—never," he says.

Parents with crippled children need not come to New York to see Lorenz. He'll stay here till Christmas. Then he'll go to Chicago. And he'll visit smaller cities around Chicago.

Lorenz speaks English. He doesn't surround himself with secretaries and hivered servants. Everybody expects the poor—can reach him without red tape.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

At last Mr. Pim Pim stopped in front of a doorway over which were the words "The Enchanted Cupboard."

This is where I keep the wonderful shovels that the Magical Wand room told you about, my dear. With these shovels you can dig a thousand times as fast as you could with ordinary ones and in a very short time, if we had them, we would have enough glittering colors dug out of my mines to dye all the Christmas toys in the world. Over there is the mine of golden-glitter beyond that is the mine of silver-sheen across from that is found the green glow and beyond is where we get the blazine blue. Ruby red and sapphire shine are also popular colors for Christmas toys and we have a wonderful lot of them.

"Do we have to have the enchanted shovels?" asked Nick. "I'm a fine digger."

"That may be," answered Pim Pim shaking his head, "but it wouldn't help any here. Those mines in the Land of Underneath are all magical and you couldn't dig up enough shining color to dye a fairy's velvet without magic shovels."

"And what happened," asked Nancy. "Why can't you get the shovels out of the cupboard?"

"Because Kip stole my key," answered Pim Pim shaking his head. "He's taken it and sneaked off to the Gnome village through the secret passage. His name should be Skip instead of Kip."

"Then what shall we do?" asked Nancy who was still curious.

"That's just it," said Pim Pim. "I don't know. I've had an idea. Why we have our magic Green Shoes. Mr. Pim Pim! We can wish ourselves into the Gnome village and into Kip and get the key!"

Mr. Pim Pim brightened. It does seem like a good plan," he nodded. "I'll go do it."

"CHICKENS" BASED ON HERSCHEL HALL STORY

The story of Douglas MacLean's latest Paramount Inc. comedy "Chickens" which is to be shown at the Bismarck Theatre tonight is familiar to the readers of the Saturday Evening Post wherein it recently appeared under the title of Yonkers Valleys. Herschel Hall is the author. A great lively keen sense of humor and an individual style have won for Hall the distinction of being one of the popular writers of the country.

"Chickens" which was written in an entirely different vein from the tales of the Pittsburgh Steel Mills which established his vogue as a writer was received with enthusiasm. Agnes Christine Johnson, author of many of Douglas MacLean's and Charles Ray's most popular successes

WOMAN SAYS SHE COULDN'T EVEN DO HER SEWING

Mrs. Carl Dommet Regains Her Strength And Is Now In Splendid Condition

I'm in wonderful health now and if I talked all day I couldn't say half the good things I would like to say about Tanlac. I had been suffering dreadfully from indigestion and other forms of stomach trouble and when I began using Tanlac it was so weak and run down I was unable to do my housework. I had to go to bed every night and I was so weak I couldn't even do a piece of sewing. I had to give up eating sweet altogether. I tried all the time but I couldn't get out still. I suffered that way for a long time. I'm eating now and I can do my housework. I thank the wonderful Tanlac. Tanlac has made in my life what I never have a trace of indigestion and I'm sleeping like a child every night. My strength has come back too and I'm doing all my housework with ease. In fact I'm feeling fine. Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

While some diamonds are obtained from river sands most of them are obtained by mining. The diamonds occur largely in a soft volcanic rock known as blue ground. This rock is taken from the mines spread out in the open air and allowed to decompose. It is afterward washed and separated.

COACH HOWARD JONES COMMENTS ON HIS CHAMPION IOWA ELEVEN

University of Iowa won the Western Conference championship Iowa is coached by Howard Jones, one of the best ends ever turned out at Yale.

Jones knows a football player when he sees one. He has developed many a star player during his coaching regime, among them being a number of players listed on the All-American team. Here is what Jones thinks of his present combination at Iowa:

"I have had a number of All-American men in my experience and I feel very strongly that either Slater or Devine are without a doubt of All-American caliber.

"Slater is a man weighing 210 pounds, has an exceptional offensive charge and is a first-class defensive player. In the past two or three years I have never seen a man who is as strong an offensive player as Slater, and we have played Illinois, Chicago, Minnesota, Nebraska and Notre Dame.

"As far as Aubrey Devine is concerned I would be willing to take ten or twenty years and put him in on an All-American for that period. He is an excellent performer in all things which make a great backfield man. I have never seen his equal in forward passing. He is a first-class drop kicker, punter and open-field runner.

"I also have two other men on my team who in my mind are All-Western choice. They are Heiding, end, and Locke at fullback. I only know of one other end in the west who is considered Belding's equal and that is Anderson of Notre Dame. As far as Locke is concerned I do not believe that there is any other fullback in the west or east who has carried the ball as consistently as Locke. He carried the ball for many gains on a 60-yard march through the Notre Dame team. He did the same thing against Illinois."

Carrying On With the American Legion

After Herbert Hagrove, ex-soldier of the American Legion, had been elected to the post of the American Legion at Washington, D. C., the American Legion men of the city formed a posse and captured the man.

A survey of bond settlement proceeds throughout the state has been begun by the American Legion of Washington. Under the law ex-servicemen have a preference right in filing on all public lands.

The retirement of 3,000 sick and wounded emergency officers of the World war with pay on the same status as officers of the regular army are retired, is being urged on congress by the American Legion.

President Harding has been invited to accompany the Hood River, Ore. post of the American Legion on its annual club of Mount Hood next summer. Governor Oat of Oregon led the Legion party to the summit of the club this year.

Demonstrating the use of the airplane as a busy man's time saver Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, flew from Washington, D. C., to Asbury Park, N. J., to address the annual convention of the state American Legion. The trip was made in two hours.

Believing that the man still is suffering from the effects of a severe wound received while in action in France, the American Legion of Hastings, Mich., is seeking to have declared the sanity of Frank Soules, former service man, serving a life term in the Michigan state prison for murder.

The sale for taxes of the estate of John J. Pershing, author of the general order on uniforms in the American Legion, has been prevented by the American Legion and the General has been requested to make the estate available for colonization by his wounded comrades now taking vocational training in agriculture.

Plans for a $10,000 war memorial at South St. Paul, to honor the men and women who served during the World war, were advanced recently at the request of the American Legion representatives who contended that it was too late to erect a monument. The memorial committee sought to honor "nobles and hungry."

The recent establishment of a post in Constantinople carries the American Legion into the second country aligned against the allies in the World war. The post was formed of American consular and embassy attaches and representatives of several American firms temporarily engaged in Turkey. There is a large post of the Legion at Cologne, Germany.

Although he could not swim, Martin J. Mahoney, New York policeman and a color sergeant of the Seventy-seventh Division in France, plunged into the surf at Rockaway Beach to save a young woman with whom he had been keeping company. He lost his life, but the girl was pulled to safety. Mahoney was a member of the police department post of the American Legion.

A promise made on Flanders field that he would take care of and protect the wife of a wounded "buddy" if the latter should fall, was fulfilled at Manchester, N. H., recently when Albert Lepandre married Mrs. Albert Thibault, whose husband was killed in action. The returned soldier and his comrade's widow met in American Legion work and their friendship grew into love.

The father of 33 children, Mann C. Brurer, Civil war veteran of Independence, Kans., could well organize a "war veterans' society of his own. Twelve of his sons served with the American army in France, one was too young to fight and the remainder of the 23 are girls who did the bit. The American Legion recently bought the family to light but at that there is one larger in the Creek Indian nation of which Brurer is a citizen.

The corsage bouquet of the fashionably dressed young woman once may have been a flourishing tuft of ragweed on a corner lot. Disabled servicemen in Kansas City hospitals have built up a good business of making artificial flowers out of weeds and the American Legion of the city is helping them sell the colored posies to florists and gift shops. War mothers of the city have taught the men to dye the weeds in natural colors.

Home From Sea and Weds.
Home again from the sea, Claudus E. Pendell Milwaukee Wis. anti-aircraft commander of the American Legion, recently has married Mrs. Gertrude Elizabeth Wegner of his home city. A direct descendant of "Don't Give Up the Ship" Lawrence of early American naval fame Pendell has self established a record in the United States navy when he climbed from a regular enlistment on May 8, 1917 to the commission of ensign on May 1, 1918. He was a Lieutenant (1st Lt.) at the close of the war. The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Michigan and Mrs. Pendell graduated from Vassar. They will live in the classic atmosphere of Boston, Mass.

Their Other Name.
Little Grace had been given some forget-me-nots by one of the neighbors and she came running to her mother with them, saying: "Oh, mamma, look at the think of Mrs. Mrs. Brown gave me!"

WORLD WAR MEN GOVERN CITY
Minneapolis Entrusts Entire Municipal Control to Veterans, With George Leach as Mayor.

With the service men of the United States unwillingly beginning to believe that the people thereof have entirely forgotten them, the city of Minneapolis is flourishing oasis in the alleged desert of dried-up memory. The citizens have entrusted their complete city government to the young World war veterans and are using the experiment.

Heading the municipal machinery is Mayor George E. Leach, who never had taken part in politics until after he had commanded the One Hundred and Fifty-first Field artillery of the Forty-second division. His city attorney is Neil M. Cranin, who had a company of infantry in the One Hundred and Fifthth regiment, Eighteenth division. A. C. Jensen, his chief of police, commanded a battalion in a depot brigade. The mayor's secretary is Frank R. Cullen, who led a platoon of engineers.

Mayor Leach was elected after a bitter contest, a fight in which his supporters decried disloyalists and lukewarm Americans lined up solidly against him. His platform was straight Americanism and straight business.

Bringing home his artillerymen of the Rainbow division after the armistice, Mr. Leach made a successful attempt to get every man of them a job. He and his staff are members of the American Legion in posts in Minneapolis and vicinity.

MAKES HIKE OF 4,000 MILES
Marine Corps Fellow Travels From San Francisco to New York Carrying 51-Pound Pack.

After facing death from thirst on the great American desert, being mistaken for a bandit and looked upon with suspicion in the communities where the marine uniform never had been seen, Charles E. Gilbert, United States marine corps, arrived in New York recently, hale, hearty and tired.

Ordered transferred from his station at San Francisco to a new post at New York, Private Gilbert sought permission to hike the distance. He was given a furlough and sent upon his way. He carried a 51-pound pack during the entire trip.

Between marches the marine found shelter and food from American Legion posts along the way, and when he reached St. Paul, his home, St. Paul Post, No. 8, turned out to greet him.

The distance of 4,000 miles hiking was covered in little more than a month. He made the 2,200-mile walk from San Francisco to St. Paul in 12 days actual time. Automobilists along the way materially helped the marcher by frequent and long "lifts."

POLICE POST OF THE LEGION
Peter Masterson of New York's "Finest" Commands an Organization of 1,200 Members.

Twelve hundred members of the "finest police force in the world" who saw service in the World war, have banded themselves together in the General Lafayette Police Post of the American Legion, New York City. Peter J. Masterson, a lieutenant of police, commands the organization.

The New York force lost 562 traffic cops, plain and fancy patrolmen, detectives, desk sergeants and police officers, when America sent out her general alarm for the roundup of Germany. Ten percent of these men received commissions in the army and navy, and 50 per cent of them won promotion both in the ranks and among the shoulder straps.

Nineteen blueshirts were awarded the Croix de Guerre for gallantry in action and the same number were killed in battle. The police post buried the 19 dead with military and police honors.

The soldier-police men have their own summer resort maintained by the post at Broad Channel, Long Island, where they may spend their annual vacation. They will form an auxiliary to their post this fall, as most of the force are married.

Present Flowers To Marshal Foch

The flowers presented to Marshal Foch by the War Mothers at the ceremonies yesterday were in a vase made from North Dakota clay at the mining department of the University of North Dakota.

The vase is one of a collection of fine pottery made from clay from the undeveloped North Dakota clay beds, which have been on exhibit at the state capital. The War Mothers with the aid of Charles Leiseman, secretary of the state board of administration, obtained permission from Dean Babcock of the state university to give the vase to Marshal Foch.

Little Peggy Jane Skeels, four years old, presented a huge bouquet of roses, the gift of the War Mothers, to Marshal Foch. William Webb Corwin, also four years old, presented a lovely bouquet of chrysanthemums to Marshal Foch, in behalf of the Legion Auxiliaries. The flowers which they gave were placed upon Marshal Foch's table at the dinner when luncheon was served shortly after the train left Bismarck.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, yellow skin, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then at 100, 200, 300, 400, 500, 600, 700, 800, 900, 1,000, 1,100, 1,200, 1,300, 1,400, 1,500, 1,600, 1,700, 1,800, 1,900, 2,000, 2,100, 2,200, 2,300, 2,400, 2,500, 2,600, 2,700, 2,800, 2,900, 3,000, 3,100, 3,200, 3,300, 3,400, 3,500, 3,600, 3,700, 3,800, 3,900, 4,000, 4,100, 4,200, 4,300, 4,400, 4,500, 4,600, 4,700, 4,800, 4,900, 5,000, 5,100, 5,200, 5,300, 5,400, 5,500, 5,600, 5,700, 5,800, 5,900, 6,000, 6,100, 6,200, 6,300, 6,400, 6,500, 6,600, 6,700, 6,800, 6,900, 7,000, 7,100, 7,200, 7,300, 7,400, 7,500, 7,600, 7,700, 7,800, 7,900, 8,000, 8,100, 8,200, 8,300, 8,400, 8,500, 8,600, 8,700, 8,800, 8,900, 9,000, 9,100, 9,200, 9,300, 9,400, 9,500, 9,600, 9,700, 9,800, 9,900, 10,000.

ENTER—HIP TRIMMING

By Marion Hale

New York, Nov. 28.—It is a remarkable in a season when coats, capes as well as gowns accentuate the long line, how many of the suits defy woman's efforts to be sleek.

Hip trimming of heavy fur fan-tasies of pleats and ornamentation, drive the stout woman to desperation.

Fortunately some of the designers "have a heart" and create suits for all conditions of weight.

The deep banding of Kolinsky on the velvety suit is not content with mere furiness. It is filled—and then some.

Indeed, the hips are accentuated by fan-shaped pieces of velvety banding in the fur.

An attractive and novel collar of Kolinsky and velvety gives the choker effect. The skirt is straight-lined.

A recent import I saw from Vienna is of cotton broadcloth banded with deep natin lands over the hips and the choker collar. Paris shows the same line defiance so, of course, we are all in for it.

All Due to the Women.

In a lecture before the Royal Institute, Prof. Arthur Keith, an eminent biologist, gave the credit for American success to the women who came over with the Pilgrim fathers. The fact that these Englishmen brought their wives with them is responsible for the remarkably sturdy condition of the American people; whereas the Spaniards who went into Central and South America left their wives behind, and the result is a hybrid race which is not the equal of the original British.

ONE and Friends.

One cannot celebrate one's birthday, after saying his best, with something better than to be spoken in their praise. As with friends, one finds new friends fit every interview, and would stay long in the presence of those chosen companions. As with friends, he may dispense with a wide acquaintance. Few and choice. The richest minds need not large libraries. That is a good book which is opened with expectation and closed with profit.—A. Brounson Alcott.

(By Billy Evans)

Western football has proved its class in 1921.

No longer is the east supreme. Western football now means something to the sporting world.

This fact was proved conclusively at the game between Ohio State and Illinois, on the outcome of which hung the Western championship. Princeton sent two of its football coaches to view the contest, feeling some worth-while knowledge could be secured. A rather telling admission on the part of the east.

The All-Western conference team I have selected is a mighty strong aggregation. It is an eleven that would make anything from the east go the limit. It is a team that contains a number of brilliant individual stars, yet would not be lacking in any of the essentials that make up a great team, because of the presence of these stars. My conference team would be strong in all departments of the game.

In making these selections I have counseled with E. C. Patterson, who for many years has made a close personal study of western elevens. It has been the ambition of all western players for seventeen years to land on Patterson's All-Western team. Mr. Patterson has seen every conference team play at least once and some of them three times. He has covered the western field thoroughly.

In presenting my All-Conference eleven, I desire to first introduce Aubrey Devine of Iowa as quarterback and captain. Devine is unquestionably one of the greatest football players the west has ever produced. He is without an equal at forward passing. He is a fine drop kicker, an equally good punter and a great open-field runner. He is All-American caliber, a player the west can point to with great pride.

The three best ends in the conference are Belding of Iowa, Crisler of Chicago and Goebel of Michigan. Belding's great work has been one of the bright features of Iowa's play throughout the season. He contributed a prominent part in bringing the western championship to Iowa. Belding draws one of the ends. For the other end it was a rather hard matter to choose between Crisler of Chicago and Goebel of Michigan. Both have played fine football all season. Crisler's great game against Wisconsin came as a climax to a big year, and was the deciding factor in relegating him to the first eleven and relegating Goebel to the second. His work against Wisconsin was by far the best exhibition of end play of the western season.

Tobell of Wisconsin ranks well as an end. Marneau of Minnesota is also a corking good end. He is the only Minnesota player who has performed consistently throughout the season. Were he on a winning team he would probably be strongly considered. Myers of Ohio State was eliminated as a possibility when he was badly outplayed in the Illinois game.

Slater of Iowa is the one best bet at tackle. He is a wonder on the offensive and a first-class man on defense. McGuire of Chicago is the other tackle selection, with Huffman of Ohio State as a strong contender. It is really a toss up between the two.

Pixley and Trott of Ohio State are the guards. The fine work of these two players on the line, offensively and defensively, had much to do with Ohio State's great showing.

Bunge of Wisconsin gets the center position. His real rival is Vick of Michigan. It was a great battle between the two when they met, with honors about even.

The selection of Williams and Elliott of Wisconsin as my halfbacks is certain to start many an argument. Perhaps one or two other backs have shown more on the offensive than either of the two backs selected, but in picking my backfield I have given consideration to both the offense and defense. Williams and Elliott have been brilliant defensive players all season.

Coach Richards of Wisconsin considers Gould the equal of any back in the conference. Stuart of Ohio and Kipke of Michigan are two excellent backs.

Locke of Iowa gets the fullback position without any hesitation. Locke is a wonder on the offensive. His great work was one of the big factors in Iowa's defeat of Notre Dame. Slater and Devine being the other contributing factors.

Defensively Sumit of Wisconsin had a shade on Locke. Sumit's punting this season has been unparalleled by any kicker in the conference. I regard Sumit as the best defensive back in the west.

Thomas of Chicago is a very good man. He might be placed at one of the halfback positions without weak-

Military Effect in Serge

BY MARIAN HALE

New York, Nov. 28.—The high military collar, with buttons reaching from beneath the ears in diverging lines to the under-sleeve line, adds an original touch to a Paul Poiret day costume of blue serge.

A basque effect is accentuated by rows of loose leather fringe, the same trimming finishing the unique sleeves which start from the collar and end in the bell-shaped cuffs.

The skirt is full and round. With this costume Poiret has designed a novel hat of steel velvet embroidered in silver nailheads. The hat is rather larger than the usual run of chapeaux on which nail heads are used and the effect is somewhat like an impregnable fortress door.

However, the steel tints are most artistic and becoming to a youthful countenance.

ening the team. The fact that Thomas has not played a full conference game this year really disqualifies him. Thomas has been Chicago's "pinch hitter," or perhaps "pinch bucket" would be better. Stagg has used him in every game only for a limited time. He has always performed big things in that given time.

$10,000 PREMIUM TEMPTING MANY

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Thousands of farmers of twenty-four states and half a dozen Canadian provinces are matching skill for the $10,000 premium list offered by the Chicago Board of Trade for the best samples of corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, seeds and hay grown during the current year. The decision will be reached at the third International Grain and Hay Show which opened here today.

Agricultural colleges, crop associations, experimental stations, the United States Department of Agriculture and Canadian provincial departments of agriculture are represented by extensive exhibits showing the handiwork of wizards of the soil throughout the productive stretches of the continent.

Prof. G. I. Christie, Purdue University, superintendent of the exhibit, which is held in connection with the International Livestock Exposition, declared that the number of samples had increased 1,000 since last year.

Standing sentinel at the entrance of the grain show is a thirty-foot ear of corn. To build this symbol of the corn belt sixty bushels of corn were required. This single freak ear, hog-raising statisticians declare, would fatten from six to nine hogs from 107
